because surgical correction of the anatomic lesion may not correct the detrusor instability, recognition and documentation of the existence of both conditions may be helpful.