I’ve read your later blog posts and it seems you may have tempered your view, maybe just a little, and recognized that quarter residents might have some legitimate complaints.

If we can leverage technology, leverage data to find things, to hone in on things sooner before they’re uncurable or unfixable, that ends up being a good thing.

There have been milestones. A father, still vigorous and working, turned 90.

But perhaps it’s just the slight social disconnect of a young man whose natural affinity is with a keyboard.
